Clean Teams May Cross County Line At Will Is Ruling

Work Stock Not To Be Held Up At Quarantine Line If Clean.

ALL ARE INSPECTED

Supervisor Warns of Penalty for Crossing Line and Re-Infestation.

NASHVILLE, July 3.—County Supervisor H. B. Aldridge in charge of tick eradication work in Howard county, in answer to a number of inquiries from people living in Hempstead county, announced yesterday that work stock may be driven across the county line for transportation purposes only, provided they are returned to Hempstead county within seven days and provided they are apparently free of ticks. Otherwise they may not be driven into the county.

The county line between Howard and Hempstead counties is the quarantine line now, Mr. Aldridge stated, and every effort will be made to prevent the prolongation of the dipping program in Howard county through reinfestation from other places.

Out to Clean County

"We want to make it just as easy on the people of Hempstead county as is possible," Mr. Aldridge said, "and we do not want to make anyone change his present trading place. But we have set out to clean Howard county and lift the quarantine, and we will allow nothing to make this job longer than is necessary. A few ticks brought in from infested territory would prolong the dipping in Howard county, and this would not be fair to the people of the county."

"The people who live in Hempstead county need not be bothered by the quarantine line if they will use just a little precaution, but no one must cross the line with ticky stock. In case they do, a heavy penalty will be assessed in accordance with the law."

Spraying Urged

"These people living in Hempstead county and desiring to drive into Howard county may have their stock sprayed at the dipping vats near the county line on the regular dipping days, and this will insure the stock staying clean and will give them free access to the county. The only charge for the spraying will be the vat charge, as the dipping forces will make no charge for this work for the Hempstead (continued on page three)

Hoover and Mellon Are Together On Tax Matters

WASHINGTON, July 3. (AP)—Existence of a difference of opinion between President Hoover and Secretary Mellon over the possibility of a reduction in federal taxes was denied today from the White House. It was stated that the President and his secretary of the treasury were in perfect agreement on the matter.

The statement issued by President Hoover yesterday had been read by Mr. Mellon and was in perfect accord with his views, reports from the White House today indicated.

No Charge Filed In Murder Case

Woman Held In Death of Husband While Other Man Sought.

BATESVILLE, July 3.—(AP)—Mrs. Norma Osborne, held in connection with the murder of her husband late Monday night at their home near Cord, was today taken to the scene of the slaying for further questioning by officers.

It was hoped that a visit to the scene of the brutal murder would cause her to change her testimony which, Sheriff Sherrill said, contained many inconsistencies.

Result of the questioning has not been disclosed, and meantime officers are continuing a search for J. P. Barber, 21, former Batesville high star football athlete who has been missing since the time of the murder. Officers desire to locate him for questioning in connection with the murder, one of the most brutal in Arkansas criminal history.

Funeral services are to be held this afternoon but the widow of the slain man is not expected to attend. She was taken into custody following the slaying and has so far evinced but little emotion over the tragic occurrence.

Unlucky Rome Flyers Seek to End Jinx

Flagpole Sitter Finds A Hot Seat

When Wires Short Out Warnack Plays Monkey, Slides Down Pole.

Sitting on a flagpole on top of a high building may seem to some a cool and restful occupation, but when the air is full of static and wires get all charged up the seat sometimes becomes rather a warm one. Anyway, that's the opinion expressed by Warnack who is doing a pole stunt on top of the Luther hotel here.

Tuesday afternoon the sky was overcast, the air full of static electricity. There were a few faint flashes of lightning and a thunder roar which shook buildings. Warnack reached for his telephone to ask Star what the weather forecast was. He got the phone—and it near got him. The thing was all full of static.

Warnack quit that pole in a hurry, coming down it like a monkey comes down a grapevine, and down he stayed until the electrical storm was over when he goes again. Today he is still there, apparently comfy as you please, planning to descend at four Thursday afternoon.

Axe Murderer Is Busy In Detroit

Family of Six Found Dead After Visit of Fiend To Home.

DETROIT, July 3.—(AP)—Benjamin Evangelista, 42, his wife, Santina, 40, and four children were found slain in their home on St. Aubin's avenue shortly before noon today. All apparently were the victims of an axe killer. Evangelista's head was completely severed from his body and the heads of the other victims had been beaten in.

The children slain were: Angelina 8; Margaret, 6; Jenn, 4; Morris, 18 months.

The family was known to be of a religious turn, with the father something of a mystic. His body was found seated behind a desk on the first floor, while the others were in the second story bedrooms.

Discovery of the bodies was made by Vincent Elias, a real estate dealer, who had called to complete the sale of a piece of land at Marine City, Mich., to Evangelista.

For baking pancakes a machine has been devised which measures the batter, cooks, turns and delivers the cake ready to be served.

Los Angeles Is Scene of Bomb Explosion Today

Offices of Grain Exchange Wrecked By Force of Blast.

NONE ARE INJURED

Clerical Force Had Not Arrived When Bomb Went Off.

LOS ANGELES, July 3. (AP)—A bomb explosion shortly before eight o'clock this morning wrecked the offices of the Los Angeles Grain Exchange, on the fifth floor of the Hellman building, at Sixth and Spring streets, in the heart of the financial district.

The blast echoed up and down the streets of the district and rocked the building to its foundation. The office was shattered and furniture blown to bits, partitions blown out and plaster knocked from the walls and ceilings of the fifth and sixth floors.

The explosion occurred a few minutes before the clerical force in the office reported for duty through the day, which accounts for there being no loss of life.

Other Bombs Found

Police investigating found in a closet in the office two other bombs, fuses of which had been ignited but which had failed to explode. Had all three bombs gone off simultaneously it is believed the entire structure would have been wrecked. No reason for the blast could be assigned and though officials of the company have been taken into custody for questioning officials have learned no information which would be of service to them.

Nearly 1,300 factories have been established in Mexico during the last few years. The new plants employ more than 50,000 workers.

Pioneer Teacher Dies In Oklahoma

W. F. Lee, Veteran Hempstead County Man, to Be Buried At Washington.

The death of W. F. Lee, aged 73, one of Hempstead county's pioneer citizens, at Norman, Okla., Tuesday night, was learned in Hope Wednesday.

Mr. Lee, a brother-in-law of State Senator U. A. Gentry, will be buried in Washington Friday, the body arriving there from Norman Thursday night. Senator Gentry was informed over long-distance telephone Wednesday that the funeral services would probably be held at Norman, after which Mr. Lee's body will be sent direct to Washington for interment.

Mr. Lee lived in Hempstead county for many years before moving to Oklahoma. He was a county examiner, and a veteran school teacher in the early days of Southwest Arkansas.

Oklahoma Asks Officers Ousted

Renewed Impeachment Activities Come At End of Session.

OKLAHOMA CITY, July 3.—Removal proceedings recommended to the Oklahoma legislature by the general investigating committee Tuesday involving three members of the state board of education were halted by a vote of the house in late session.

By a vote of 39 to 26 the lower chamber refused to accept the committee report which assailed the Rev. Forney Hutchinson, Mrs. Bertha Truitt and J. R. Holmes, member of the board, on charges that they accepted pay for lectures, readings and teaching while working as state education officials.

Impeachment of John Rogers, state examiner and inspector also was recommended in the report, according to John Head, chairman of the committee.

The house passed in late session the bill providing $8,000,000 for departmental uses. The vote was 68 to 16.

OKLAHOMA CITY, July 3.—The Oklahoma legislature Tuesday again had turned to the impeachment side of their activity with only two and one half days left (continued on page six)

NO PAPER THURSDAY

There will be no issue of Star Thursday, July 4, the force, from publisher to "devil" taking a day off to celebrate. But don't worry about the day, for on Friday you will get a double portion of serial story, comic strips, features 'n' everything.

This has been the custom in Hope for many years, we are told, and in conformity with that custom office employees will have a day of rest and recreation. And, with "Curly," of "Out Our Way," we hope you have a whoopee time!

Missouri Pacific Is Aiding Festival

"The Service Road," As Usual, To Do Its Part In Annual Affair.

W. E. Lamb, superintendent of the Missouri Pacific, in a letter to W. Homer Pigg, secretary of the local chamber of commerce, states that the road will this year, as usual, lend active aid to the Melon Festival committee in preparation for Arkansas' annual premier event.

The road plans to operate a special train from Little Rock to Hope on Festival Day, with probability that a special train from Texarkana will also bring additional hundreds to this city. In addition, the road will have its entry in the parade and its band, one of the foremost amateur musical organizations in the southwest will have a place in the line of march.

Briefly reviewing the history of the past three Watermelon Festivals, it may be truthfully said that the Missouri Pacific has had an important part in the making of the Festival the success which it is generally acknowledged to be.

Rep. Parks Heard By Record Crowd

Congressman Addresses Loyalty Night.

The loyalty of a progressive people was described as the prime reason for Arkansas' rapid development in the last 10 years, by Congressman Tilman Parks in a speech Tuesday night before Hope's civic organizations gathered in the club room of the Barlow hotel.

A capacity crowd attended the Loyalty night banquet, second of a series of quarterly meetings lunched this year. The first, held in March, was sponsored by the Business and Professional Women's club, and last night's meeting by the Rotary club. The co-operating clubs were: Wiwanis, Business and Professional Women, Hope City Council and Hope Chamber of Commerce.

Roy Anderson, president of the Chamber of Commerce, presided; and seated with him at the speaker's table, besides Congressman Parks, were Mayor Boyett and District Highway Engineer Stanford.

Congressman Parks' address was a glowing review of state and national accomplishments in the last decade. The awakening of Arkansas to its present program of public works, its paved highways and state bridges, he attributed to the fine desire of Arkansas citizens to do as much or more for their own commonwealth as citizens might do for any other state.

"And it was the loyalty of Hope," he continued, "that made possible the construction of the fine new state-owned bridge at Fulton, soon to be opened. A franchise for a privately-owned toll bridge for 49 years had been (continued on page six)

Man Who Killed Range Rider Is Still Out of Jail

Person Hearing Continued To Friday When Called Today.

'TECHNICAL' ARREST

Person In Custody of Special Officer Since Killing Occurred.

TEXARKANA, July 3.—(AP)—Preliminary hearing for Lee K. Person, Miller county plantation owner, on a charge of murder in connection with the slaying of L. I. Simmons, range rider working with the state in tick eradication work, was again postponed today, being re-set for Friday morning.

The hearing was to have been held on last Saturday, but at that time was continued to today. Person continued at liberty under a special guard. He has not been confined in jail since the slaying.

The shooting grew out of tick eradication work in the county when Simmons and other riders dipped some of Oerson's cattle. Simmons, a former chief of police in Texarkana, had been employed as a range rider in carrying on the work of tick eradication.

Heavy Demand for Half-Year License

Hayes McRae Says Car Owners Giving Him the Grand Rush.

A total of nearly two hundred 1929 auto license have been applied for in Hope since the half-rate went into effect on July 1, according to Hayes McRae, deputy collector for the Hope district.

These figures do not include the licenses issued from the sheriff's office in Washington. Of the number, sixty-six were applied for almost before the day's business began July 1, and most of the others came in during the day.

This establishes a record in Hope according to authorities, and Mayor Boyett and Chief Baker are looking for the same number to visit the city hall on the same mission.

McClanahan Gets Nice String of Squirrels

J. F. McClanahan, one of the fellows here who likes to pop a cap occasionally at live game, eased out in the woods a ways yesterday—and at 2:30 came back to town with the bag limit of squirrels—eight.

He made the killing from about 11 o'clock to 1:30, right at the time of day when squirrels are not moving around. But he got his moving and had time for plenty more had not the law limited him to the number already killed.

By way of advice to other hunters, when asked where he got them, Ma grinned and said something about sitting on a flagpole in this kind of weather. Now you know as much as he told this reporter.

Rocky Mound 4-H Club To Give Pie Supper

Tomorrow — Thursday — night, which happens to be the glorious Fourth of July, the Rocky Mound 4-H club will give an ice cream supper at the schoolhouse, the purpose being to raise funds to enable club members to attend Farmers' Week at Fayetteville.

Rock Mound has one of the most progressive and active clubs in the county and the invitation they are extending for everybody to attend this event should be met with a liberal response.

Plan Farm Tour Tuesday, July 9

Near-Beer foe

If John Hammond, above, veteran dry crusader, has his way about it, the citizens of Iowa won't be able to drink even near beer to quench their summer thirst. Hammond had officers at Des Moines seize ten carloads of the beverage which, as a malt liquor, he claims is contraband under Iowa law. A court will decide.

Timely Shower Worth Thousands

General Rain Saves Corn Crop In Southwest Arkansas Farmers Say.

The rains of Tuesday afternoon and night were worth thousands to the farmers of Hempstead and surrounding counties, according to a statement this morning by County Agent Lynn Smith. Old corn as well as the younger was badly needing moisture and while cotton was not suffering, the rains didn't hurt it any.

In some portions of the county, Mr. Smith says, corn was rather badly damaged, but as a whole the rains came just in time to insure a feed crop. There will be a heavy acreage planted to June corn now, he believes, and there is moisture sufficient in the earth to bring it up to a stand.

Missouri Pacific Train Kills Baby

Engineer Didn't See Little One In Time To Stop Train.

BRANCH, Ark., July 3.—(AP)—Tom Baker King, four-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Virgin King, was killed by a Missouri Pacific train today while crawling between the rails across a bridge.

The child left the house to meet a member of the family returning from town and was crossing a creek by crawling over the road trestle. The train engineer said he did not see the little one on the tracks in time to stop the train.

Basic Science Board Named

Parnell Appoints Men High In Medical Circles To Board.

LITTLE ROCK, July 3.—(AP)—The five appointive members of the basic science board were named by Governor Parnell today. All are men outstanding in medical circles of the state. They are:

E. L. Whittitt, Jonesboro, dean of A. & M. college, for a term of two years; Dr. S. C. Dellinger, professor of Zoology and instructor in science at University of Arkansas, the three year term; M. J. McHenry, instructor in science at Conway, the four year term and Dr. D. A. Spessard, instructor in science at Ouachita college, Arkansas, the five year term; Dr. Louis E. Gebauer, bacteriologist, the six year term. The state superintendent is automatically a member of the board.

Under the terms of the act passed by the last legislature any applicant to practice any of the healing arts in this state must undergo an examination before the board.

Key Farmers To Be Guests Hope Concerns On Trip

Tour Is An Annual Event, This Year Devoted To Dairy Industry.

WILL COVER COUNTY

One-Day Campaign To Reach Many of County's Best Farms.

The second annual Farm-Tour of Hempstead county will be made Tuesday, July 9, visiting farms which derive most of their income from cotton, cows, hens and sows. Agent Lynn Smith announced Wednesday.

One day will not enable the tourists to visit all the demonstration farms in the county but the following itinerary has been selected:

Meet at Hope city hall 8:30 a. m. Farms will be visited on the Hope-Blevins road, and from Blevins the tour will proceed to Washington, where noon luncheon will be held on the courthouse lawn. In the afternoon the tourists will visit farms on the Washington-Ozan road, across to Columbus, and back to Hope.

Hope business men who acted as sponsors during the dairy feed demonstration campaign in the spring are expected to invite their key farmers as guests on the tour July 9. Everyone will take a basket luncheon with him, for the noon meal at Washington.

Prominent agricultural speakers and experts will accompany the tour, and hold a short speaking program at the noon stop.

Further details will be announced as plans for the tour are completed.

Liquor Found In Car Lined With Peppers

NEW SMYRNA, Fla., July 3.—A pepper, surmised Chief of Police J. B. White, is a very inoffensive creature of the vegetable kingdom, but a carload is a good many peppers.

So many, in fact, that the chief was constrained to investigate. He found that the peppers merely lined the car, while inside were 200 cases of assorted imported liquors, consigned to a New Jersey point from Malabar, Fla.

The Curse of Misspelled Words

It is a number of years since the craze for simplified spelling swept the land. It has largely died down now; but, in its place, there has come a much less likable descendant—the vogue for misspelling words in display advertisements.

Charles Hanson Towne, in the current Harper's Bazaar, considers this tendency and does not like it. Sarcastically, he suggests that congress pass a law providing 10 years in jail and a $10,000 fine for anyone who misspells a word on an electric sign, billboard or street car placard.

"Stepping down the street the other evening," he writes, "I was dismayed at the number of words I found it difficult to read. It was as though I were in a foreign country. Theatre managers sought to lure me in to see 'vodvill' and 'burlesk'. I felt that the performances would be as discreditable as the words over the entrance of these palaces of art.

"Before another palace I was confounded by a sign which told the world that there would be a good show 'tonite'. Once in motoring I had seen a sign insisting that if one wished to reach a certain town one should turn to the 'rite'.

Then Towne mentions those familiar signs that recommend "made rite furniture," "uwanna this" and "iwanna that," "Kollege Klothes," and so on. There move him to grind his teeth in rage; and he goes on to consider "other abominations," which, he says, are on display in every town. "A restaurant," he writes, "will brazenly announce 'eats'. And luncheonette—a dire word itself—I have seen abbreviated into 'lunchette'. Nor does 'tae-tee' candy seem more tasty because the word has been distorted out of all resemblance to itself."

Unfortunately, there doesn't seem to be any relief in sight. Some people will continue to consider that kind of spelling attractive—just as some shop keepers persist in calling their places "shoppes".

Pedants Are Rebuked

TEACHERS of English who cling to all the ancient rules were given a thorough-going rebuke in a recent lecture by Dr. Frank H. Vizetelly, one of the greatest living authorities and editor of a leading dictionary.

Among other things, the doctor countenanced ending a sentence with a preposition, approved the split infinitive, testified to the forcefulness of a moderate amount of slang, and otherwise played havoc with many pet traditions of the pedants.

The English language, like all others is still in the making, and will continue to change and grow. Spelling, pronunciation, grammar and everything pertaining to the language have undergone many modifications through the centuries. The rules and usages sanctioned by the most virile writers and speakers will always constitute the highest authority in any particular period.

It is important to learn the rules, but it is often as important to know when to break them for the sake of clarity and vigor of speech.

Thinner Pigs

FOR as far back as we can remember, the farmer has always tried to raise fat and bulky hogs.

Now, however, it is reported that slim hogs are more in demand than fat ones. Pigs, like human beings, are being obliged to reduce.

The price of lard has fallen heavily, and at least a fourth of a big hog is lard. Then, too, public taste is changing. Hams now must be lean and tender. Bacon must not be too fat. Chops must have plenty of red, lean meat in them.

To be sure, this doesn't make any great difference. Only it is traditional to appraise a pig's value by his general fatness. It will seem odd, now, to find lean pigs getting the blue ribbons.

WASHINGTON LETTER

BY ROBBY DUTCHER

WASHINGTON—You could never guess, without being told, why the House decided to place a tariff on snake skins and to continue to give angostura bitters a preferential rate over other bitters.

Snake skins have recently come to be used for shoes, handbags and other leather articles, as well as women's hats, clothes, collars and cuffs.

Angostura bitters have come to be widely used in the making of cocktails and are consequently sold in many delicatessen stores, although they are put up and advertised as a medicine good for the stomach.

The Keystone Reptile Tanners, Inc., led the fight for the snake skin tariff and managed to get a 25 per cent. ad valorem duty on finished and addressed snake leather for other purposes than use in making footwear, snake leather for that purpose being taxed only 10 per cent.

Huge Quantities Are Imported This duty goes for all kinds of snakes, lizards, pythons, boa constrictors and other mean animals whose hides are used for wear or adornment. It was estimated that about $6,000,000 worth of this leather was being imported each year.

The main sources of supply are in India, Asiatic islands and northern Africa. It was contended before the Ways and Means Committee that when one of the large American firms went into the reptile-importing business last year foreign reptile tanners reduced their prices here 25 or 30 per cent, indicating that they had been gouging our consumers.

American snakes have not yet been developed to the point where they are fit for tanning because their scales drop off when the skins are folded, so nearly all snake skins now being worn are brought in from India.

One learns with pride, however, that the American snake may yet demonstrate his utility. Experiments are being made on snake farms in Florida, Texas and Oklahoma with 100 per cent American rattlers and moccasins to see if they can't make themselves as valuable as the Indian variety. Similar experiments are being carried out on frogs.

Of course, as long as they must depend on India for snakes, our own reptile tanners do not want any duty on raw snake skins, but only on the cured ones. Inasmuch as our snake farms have not yet developed snakes which can be guaranteed not to shed after skinning, no representatives of that infant industry have come to Washington to demand protection. If the experiments succeed the next tariff revision doubtless will produce a battle between the snake raisers and the snake tanners.

Now to jump from snake skins to angostura bitters. It will doubtless be interesting to all users of these bitters and instructive to others to learn that they do not contain angostura bark but are only named from the town in which they were first made, Angostura, Venezuela.

A representative of another bitters importing company went before the Ways and Means Committee and protested because in the present Tariff Act it is provided that all alcoholic bitters except angostura bitters shall pay duty of $5 a gallon and angostura bitters only $2.60 a gallon.

Mr. A. Edward Wupperman, representing J. W. Wupperman, Inc., replied that their angostura bitters were the most expensive bitters in the world and hence do not compete with American bitters as other imported bitters did.

CHRYSLER MOTORS PRODUCT

This new and modern manufacturing plant is devoted exclusively to the production of Plymouth motor cars. It is the largest plant of its kind.

Marking
the First Anniversary of a notable Success

PLYMOUTH—One year old this week—is already a giant in fact and favor

One year ago, Plymouth was a brand-new name to the motor world. In the brief span of twelve months, Plymouth, now newly refined and improved, has become everywhere a commanding figure in the low-priced field.

Only a year—and Plymouth finds itself in the biggest and most modern plant of its kind in the world. Only a year—and Plymouth production now exceeds the rate of 1000 cars a day.

Quality—that's the story of Plymouth success—quality that reflects itself in both appearance and performance—quality that says to the automobile buyer, "No longer does a small investment restrict you to a car of small dimensions."

See it, drive it—and learn what Plymouth quality means.

Fourth of July Poem
Thou, too, sail on, O ship of state!
Sail on, O Union, strong and great
We know what Master laid thy keel,

With all the hopes of future years,
Hanging breathless on thy fate
We know that Master laid thy keel,
What workman wrought thy ribs
Of steel,

Who made each mast, and sail, and rope,
What anvils rang, what hammers beat,
In what a forge and what a heat
Were shaped the anchors of thy hope.

Sail on, nor fear to breast the sea,
Our hearts, our hopes are all with thee,
Our hearts, our prayers, our tears,
Our faith triumphant o'er our fears,
Are all with thee—are all with thee

Southerners Who Oppose DePreist Incident Styled "Cowards"

CLEVELAND, O., July 3.—(AP)—Charges of cowardice and hypocrisy were flung by Congressman Oscar De Priest, negro of Chicago, last night at members of the legislatures of Southern states which recently passed resolutions censuring Mrs. Herbert Hoover for inviting his wife to a White House reception. Congressman De Priest was speaking before 2,000 persons at a mass meeting of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

"They're just a lot of cowards," the Illinois congressman called the Southern legislators. "This is my country and your country. I've been elected to congress the same as any other congressman and I'm going to have the rights of every other congressman—no more and no less—if it's in the congressional barber shop or at a White House tea."

De Priest said the criticism of Mrs. Hoover's receiving his wife at the White House tea was an incident used by Southern Democratic politicians, seeking to win the Solid South back into the Democratic party.

"However," he added, "all racial prejudice is not confined to any one party or to any one church. They are all tinged with it."

Turning to the subject of prohibition, De Priest said, "the government is preparing to spend millions for enforcement of the 18th amendment. A few millions ought to be spent to enforce the 13th, 14th and 15th which guarantee the negro his civil and political rights."

"I do not propose to vote to appropriate a penny to enforce the 18th amendment until similar sums are voted to enforce these other amendments now being violated all through the South."

De Priest said that as a congressman he will pay as much attention to the needs of his white constituents as to those who are black.

"Only in one respect will I insist favoring negroes, and that is in my recommendations for ap-county people. However, if ticky stock is driven into the county, the full price will be charged for dipping, in addition to the assessment of the penalty provided by law for violating the quarantine.

"The restrictions are not hard on Hempstead county people, and we hope to have the co-operation of every citizen of that county who desires to come to Howard county. There will be no agent stationed on the roads at the present, but inspections of the teams will be made at times when the teams are found in Howard county. When the busy season comes, we expected to keep men on the roads at the county line for purposes of inspections there. Those who spray their stock regularly will not need to fear trouble. Those who do not have their stock sprayed should be very careful in their inspection before leaving home to cross the line, for we shall not hesitate to assess the penalty if ticks are found on a team."

There are a large number of Hempstead county people who do their trading in Nashville, this being their home town, and every effort will be made not to inconvenience these people or any others who may wish to drive work stock into the county. There have been several rumors of stock being turned back to the county line, but Mr. Aldridge states that these rumors are without foundation. He says that so far no reports have been made of finding ticks on any Hempstead county stock driven into the county, and that a large number of Hempstead county people are already having their stock sprayed at the line vats in order that they may have free access to Howard county at any time they desire to cross the line. No work stock will be allowed to remain in Howard county, when driven in from across the line, more than seven days.

Cattle cannot be brought across the line under any circumstances.

THIS HAS HAPPENED

John Curtis Morgan, lawyer, is deserted by his wife, Iris Morgan. She elopes with Bert Crawford for whom Morgan has recently won a verdict. Morgan does not suspect Crawford. Nan Carroll, Morgan's secretary, is deeply in love with him and by cleverly forcing him into his work, saves him from utter despair after Iris' departure.

For six months, she acts as long-suffering housekeeper for him, winning the love of little six-year-old Curtis. Nan passes her bar examinations and Morgan takes her into the firm as junior partner. He tells her he is divorcing Iris and begs her to marry him. She accepts.

Their farcical marriage continues for three months, when Nan decides she will have to leave. The next morning Iris, deserted by Morgan, goes to his home. Nan determines to fight and has the doctor remove Iris to a hospital.

Curtis is hostile to Nan at dinner and Morgan sends him to his room. He tells Nan he will have to do something for Iris and proposes a monthly allowance. Nan goes to tell Curtis good night. He asks her if it is true she won't let his mother come home. She tells him it is against the law for a man to have two wives.

Curtis goes to see his mother daily. She stuffs him with forbidden sweets and he becomes ill, pale-faced, and hostile to Nan. Christmas morning he awakens with fever. In the midst of their anxiety, Morgan receives a telegram.

Now Go On With the Story

CHAPTER XXI

For once, at least, Nan's usually famed "woman's intuition" played her false. She was so sure that the telegram just delivered into her husband's hands was from his former wife, making some new insolent demand upon his time, purse, or love, that she was turning sharply away.

"What rotten luck!" Morgan exclaimed disgustedly. "The wires from the capital. By a shift in the supreme court calendar, that Bradley case comes up Friday. If I can be ready with my witnesses by then, I don't like to ask for another adjournment, because I'd like to get the Bradley case off my hands before the Blackhall trial reopens in January. But with the kid sick and all—"

His hesitation and the dark flush which accompanied it told Nan that the "and all" referred to Iris and all the complications which her unexpected return had brought into her husband's life.

"Curtis isn't dangerously ill," Nan reminded him coldly. "I think it's really quite lucky that you can dispose of the Bradley case before you have to go back into the Blackhall trial. You know, you can trust me to take good care of Curtis."

"Of course, dear," he interrupted quickly, as if she had reminded him that it was not she, but Iris, who had made the child ill by stuffing him with chocolates and candied fruits. "I suppose there's nothing for it but to go. I'll have to put in a hectic two days getting hold of my witnesses. I wonder if you'd mind very much if I put in two or three hours at the office today? I'll have to go over the transcript of the first trial pretty thoroughly."

"Of course you will," Nan agreed, still in that unnatural cold voice. She wanted to act as if nothing stood between them, to give her usual warm, eager assistance, but Iris was between them now; there was no possible blinking of that fact. Until Morgan himself banished her. But Nan forced herself to add, as cheerfully as possible: "I'll be glad to help, if you want to bring the records home."

She felt that Morgan's eyes, still fixed upon the telegram, were deliberately avoiding hers. His flush deepened. "I don't think that will be necessary, Nan. You'll have your hands full with the boy. What time are we to have dinner?"

"It was planned for two, so that Curtis might safely eat as much as he pleased, but now that he's ill, I can set the hour ahead to six, if you like."

Her jealous eyes told her that he was relieved. "Fine! That will give me several hours of good, hard work. Of course, if Curtis gets worse, or calls for me, I'll cut the work short and hurry home."

"I shan't telephone unless you're really needed," Nan promised. "If he wanted the assurance that he would have time to slip in a Christmas Day visit with Iris, let him have it. She had always done everything in her power to make him happy. Why stop now?"

When her husband was gone, Nan wandered into the drawing room where the neglected Christmas tree still offered all its treasures. Morgan, obviously, had forgotten the tree. The seals were unbroken on the packages which contained hers and Curtis' gifts for him.

Her steps, made very slow by the weariness of despair, Nan walked about the tree, untying the gold and silver cord which bound the tissue-wrapped parcels tagged with her stepson's name. They made quite a formidable little pile, exclusive of the toy automobile and the well-stocked tool chest. "For Curtis from Estelle"; "For Curtis from Maude and Big Pat"; "For Curtis from his Father." High up on the tree, just below the big silver Star of Bethlehem, Nan found a parcel she had not seen before. This time her intuition did not play her false. The card, which bore a highly colored picture of the Madonna and Child, was inscribed: "For my little lover, from his adoring Mother."

"John slipped down here last night after I was asleep and put it there," Nan told herself with the curious detachment of despair.

Without being conscious of any curiosity as to what the small box contained, Nan added it to the pile of gifts she would carry upstairs to the sick child. Then she walked slowly about the tree again, her eyes duly taking in her own name, written on half a dozen tags. A gift from each of the servants, even from Little Pat. Sweet of them, dear of them to spend their money on her. But Nan felt no uplifting of the heart. What would it avail her if she gained the love of the whole world and lost that of the one man she could ever love?

She had resolutely ignored the package which she knew contained his gift to her. She did not have the courage to look at the tag. If it said merely, "For Nan, from John," she could not bear it. Better uncertainty than that.

"Am I losing my nerve completely?" Nan whipped up anger and disgust against herself. "Look at it, you idiot! Better to know the worst than to kid yourself."

With a quick, resolute jerk she tore the package from a branch of the gaily decked tree, wounding it, so that the pungent odor of its tears filled her nostrils. She watched the pine needles. She the floor, then forced her eyes to read the card.

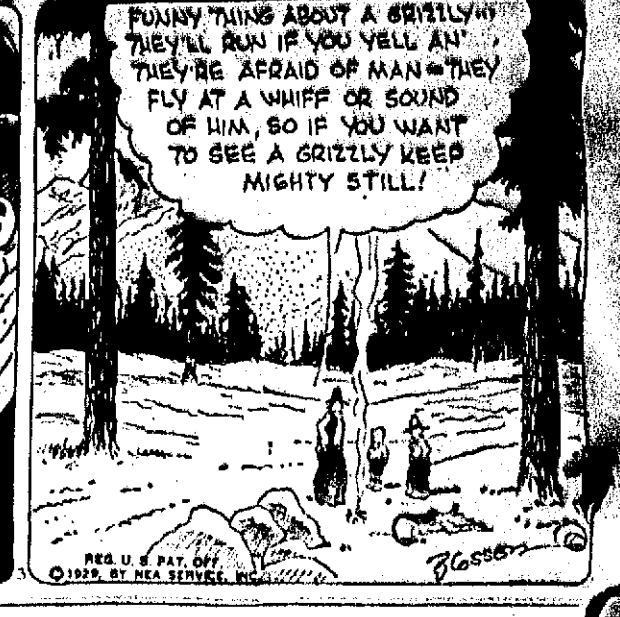

"Oh!" she cried. The card was inscribed, in the handwriting she knew and loved so well: "For my dear wife, from John."

With gentle fingers, which must have soothed the hurt feelings of the little fir tree, Nan retied the parcel, still unopened. She and John would open their gifts together when he came back Christmas was a heavenly time,

FRECKLES AND HIS FRIENDS

Bear in Mind!

He's Circling Globe in This Tiny Plane

Here's Baron Frederick von Loenig Walthausen, just arrived in the United States, and the tiny airplane in which he is flying around the world. The baron's plane measures 24 feet long, over all, and is six feet high, with a wing spread of 36 feet. It has a twin-cylindered, 20-horsepower motor capable of getting 50 miles on a gallon of gasoline. The young German flyer is now on his way across the continent to New York, having arrived in San Francisco by steamer from Japan.

Dallas Seeks to Save Sinners With Municipal Minister

need to be generous toward that other woman, who, it seemed, was to be vanquished! "For my dear wife—" her heart sang, over and over.

"Huh? At the hospital?" Curtis repeated, with scorn for Nan's ignorance. "She ain't—I mean, isn't at the hospital any more. She went to the Wellington Arms yesterday. Father and I took her. She's got a swell room. 'At's a hotel. Why don't they say Wellington Hotel, Nan? Silly, calling a hotel an Arms!" He lay back upon his pillows, looking suddenly tired and peevish. "Sing to me, Nan. You sing pretty."

Before Nan, whose voice was a little husky with unshed tears, could finish the carol he had asked for, the child was asleep. Her hand upon his forehead told her that, despite the excitement of receiving so many gifts, his temperature was perceptibly lower.

Twice, during the long afternoon, Nan was sorely tempted to call the office. It would make her even more happy to be absolutely sure that he was there, working on the Bradley case. But each time she refrained. Was she degenerating into one of those jealous, suspicious wives who can't trust their husbands out of their sight, who resort to low tricks to catch them in lies and deceit?

At five Dr. Black came. When he had completed his examination of the sick child, he drew Nan with him out into the hall. As the door closed his jovial grin faded instantly, and was replaced by a grave frown.

"Is it anything serious, doctor?" Nan asked in a terrified whisper, as they descended the stairs.

"The doctor did not answer until they reached the front hall. 'I can't be sure. Children are pesky patients. Scare you to death one day, and provoke you into spanking them the next by their high spirits. To be frank, Nan, it looks a little like appendicitis—Hey, hold on to yourself, girl! Nothing to hit the ceiling about if it is. And it may not be, of course, at worst, a very mild attack which may never be repeated, if you watch his

Dallas, Tex., July 3.—If all Dallasites do not have special seats in Heaven, it won't be the fault of Mayor J. Waddy Tate, newly elected, who has made good his campaign pledge to appoint a municipal minister.

The Rev. Mrs. Charles Chasteen has been appointed by Mayor Tate as Dallas' first city soul-saver.

With the words, "Rescue the perishing, comfort the dying," on his lips, Tate formally invested the Rev. Mrs. Chasteen with the office of municipal minister at a city commission meeting.

Mrs. Chasteen will perform marriages free of charge for those unable to pay, will preach to the city's prisoners, will conduct funerals for the poor, and will be at the call of any Dallas citizen who feels the need of spiritual guidance.

The Rev. Mrs. Chasteen has been an ordained minister for more than 20 years. She was formerly pastor of a church at Little Rock, Ark. Recently she has been confining her activities to assisting her husband, the Rev. Charles Chasteen, pastor of the Mount Auburn Christian church here. She is a great Bible student, wearing out a copy of the book every two months by constant reading.

Mrs. Chasteen is a second cousin of the late William Cullen Bryant. She is a grandmother.

"Dallas has long commanded the loyal and unselfish services of its citizens in matters for material improvement," Mayor Tate said. "Civic-minded citizens have served on the park board, the public welfare board and other civic groups. I am now asking Mrs. Chasteen to serve in a work of great significance, looking toward Dallas' spiritual improvement. Through the work of the municipal minister, Dallas will be able to show that it

Streaked Surfaces on Furniture Caused by Moisture

Many housewives complain of the streaked appearance of their furniture after it has been polished. Some blame the wood, some the furniture polish, some the maid. But a prominent student of cabinet making has put the blame on atmospheric conditions and lack of knowledge on the part of the housewife.

One of the chief causes of streaking in fine woods, is the fact that they are polished when damp. Therefore, before cleaning fine articles, the careful housewife should see that each piece is thoroughly dry, and then apply a high-grade polish.

The Standard Oil Company of Louisiana has developed "Standard Liquid Gloss," a polish especially prepared for use on fine furniture. It cleans and polishes in one operation, bringing out the beauty of grain of the wood. On sale at all dealers. 4-oz. bottle, 25c; 12-oz. bottle, 50c. Also in quart, gallon, and 5-gallon tins. Adv.

HOKS SLIDES

Henry L. Farrell

Herbie Is A Modest Fellow
Herb Pennock of the New York Yankees, who is regarded as the best southpaw pitcher in baseball, was asked recently by a New York writer to name the ten best pitchers he had seen in the American League in the last ten years.

With becoming modesty the Yankee pitcher omitted his own name when he mentioned the following in order to their merit: Waite Hoyt, Walter Johnson, Lefty Grove, Lefty Walberg, Sam Jones, Red Faber, Ted Lyons, George Pipgras, General Crowder and Ed Morris.

Up Comes Huggins

Miller Huggins, manager of the Yankees, overheard the cross-examination and he stepped in with an opinion of his own. It is seldom that the little Miller ventures any opinions without pressure.

"I'll tell you," he said, "without you asking me, that Pennock is the best pitcher in the last ten years. Hoyt comes next. Pipgras doesn't rate up there because he hasn't had enough experience, but he will get there. The same thing goes for Crowder and Morris. "I'd put Uhlé way up there. He's poison to us. I'd also have way up there, Grove, Walberg, Lyons, Faber, Jones and Jack Quinn and, merely, by all means, Walter Johnson."

Ain't That Many Plays

Knute Rockne, the Notre Dame football coach, tells of a young high school coach, who approached him and asked him for a few new plays.

Rockne asked him how many plays he had given his squad and the young coach answered that he had 180 in his bag.

"You don't need any more plays," Rockne said. "I never heard of 180 plays and furthermore I don't believe there are that many."

That's A Swell Reason

Helen Menny and Martha Norclius, two of the best swimmers and drawing cards in the country, were suspended recently by the A. A. U.

And the official reason given by the A. A. U. was that "they did something that they knew they shouldn't have done. They associated with professionals."

It is to be presumed that the young ladies did the impossible thing of swimming in a meet (with out pay) in which the A. A. U. or one of its allied clubs didn't gobble up all the gate receipts.

No Broken Heart for Him

"BROADWAY" COMES TO HOPE FOR THREE DAYS

"The Broadway Melody" an elaborate production filmed by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, with all-talking, singing and dance effects, is the attraction which will be at the Senger Theatre Thursday, Friday and Saturday. It is the most vividly portrayed drama of back stage life to reach the screen, with all the glamour, tinsel and clatter for which life behind the scenes is famous, reproduced in truthful and vivid manner.

The story, an original by the celebrated playwright, Edmund Goulding, relates the sad yet humorous experience of a small town "sister act" that looks like material for the Follies but flops in rehearsal. Through it all runs a humanly interesting romance, such as is carried on only in the average life of show people, whose chief aim in living is to entertain the public for which they perform.

The dramatic climax is a most heart-gripping episode, for after struggling to keep her "little sister" from wandering off the straight and narrow, the good samaritan sees true love take its course by sacrificing her own lover. Anita Page and Bessie Love appear as the "sister act," and Charles King, musical comedy star, as the helpful song-and-dance-man lover.

Kenneth Thompson plays the idle rich and handsome stage door Johnnie, who endeavors to gain the attentions of Miss Page and is the ultimate cause of the cyclonic climax. Mary Moran, Eddie Kane and others of note are in the supporting cast.

Harry Beaumont, responsible for "Our Dancing Daughters" and other successes, directed the new production, which is interspersed throughout with specially written musical scores.

HUSBANDS, ATTENTION!

Believe It Or Not, This Kansas City Wife Divorced Her Hubby Because He Never Went Out At Night.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., July 2.—Lots of women have divorced their husbands because they stayed out at night, but it remained for Mrs. Esther Forrester Stanton, 22 and pretty, to divorce hers because he insisted on staying in.

She cut the bonds of matrimony that tied her to Jackson C. Stanton, 44, and a wealthy attorney, because he insisted on staying home of evenings, smoking his pipe and listening to the radio.

"I'm, so I liked to go places and see things, did I?" Mrs. Stanton quoted from her husband's answer to her divorce petition. "I'll say—I was never out of the house after sunset without him and very seldom with him. Was I a home loving wife? I had to be!"

It seems that Mr. Stanton just insisted on sitting around, smoking his pipe and listening to his radio.

"Oh, I can see that pipe now—crusted, short-stemmed, smelly!" continued the young ex-wife. "If it had only been a fancy one. Never again for me!"

In his law office, Stanton puffed that irritating pipe and told his side.

"Youth and age simply will not mate," he summed it up. "We tried honestly and faithfully to get along."

"I offered to go out nights although the divorce petition sounded different. I like to dance—the girls say I'm a good dancer. And I'd take my wife hunting and fishing. That little girl will make some man a good wife—when she settles down."

Stanton's first wife died two and a half years ago. He later married ried the second Mrs. Stanton whom he described as "my wife's best friend's baby sister."

Since the newspapers have told about this paragon of husbands who prefers to stay home at nights he has been deluged with proposals from other women to such an extent that he has had to plug his telephone. Also, he has been flooded with letters.

But Stanton, through with matrimony for a while at least, turned to his pipe again and headed off the ladies with this statement, issued to newspapers:

"On account of the numerous telephone calls that I have received since my recent divorce, I feel that I should make this statement. I crave most to be let alone. I am busy and must have sleep and rest."

Above is Mrs. Esther Forrester Stanton, 22, who divorced Jackson C. Stanton, 44, because he insisted on staying home at night.

Claims He's Heir to $50,000,000 Estate

George Morgan (above) is just an innkeeper in Meridan, Mass., now, but he may become one of the world's richest men. Morgan claims to be a direct descendant of Sir Andrew Chadwicke and has started legal action to prove his right to Sir Andrew's $50,000,000 estate now held in the English chancery courts. Morgan points to his resemblance to Sir Andrew and claims he is a descendant in the sixth generation.

Independence Day Card Well Matched

Indications Are Good Crowd Will See Big Double Bill.

When five big black boys climb into the ring at the Rink tomorrow night to open the evening's festivities there will be started one of the best boxing events ever staged in Hope or surrounding country. For promoters Robins and Russell and house manager Shivers have "spread themselves" to give boxing fans on this occasion a taste of big-time stuff, with plenty of action crowded into every event.

The card is unusual in that it slates a ten-round semi-final and a ten-round final—and fans are up in the air as to which will be the outstanding event of the evening. Hall, Little Rock negro, and Terry, gas company employee and a shade lighter in color than his opponent, have met before, the bout being called a draw. Which decision has provoked 'steen arguments, pro and con.

Opinion is about evenly divided on the match and if you want to make a bet, just open your mouth. No matter which side you are on, you'll very promptly be called and called hard. That's that for the semi-final, with preliminaries leading up to it promising to be full of leather-slugging.

In the main bout, Selmar vs. Steele—well, there's a question. Selma is an old stager. Been in there plenty and knows his way about in the roped arena. Steele is younger and pretty much all man, too. Thinks he can put it over the old boy because, as he expresses it, "Selmar is a good man—but he's going back. I'm just coming and I believed I can take him to the cleaners."

Right there, however, in the opinion of many fans, Mr. Steele is taking on a man's sized job. He may be young, they argue, but this Selmar can stand a lot of "taking" and still be in there when the finishing gong sounds.

Anyway you look at it, there's bound to be a lot of happenings over to the Rink on the night of July 4 and lots of folks to enjoy them.

Marian Farmer of Zion, Ill., was denied her school diploma because she bobbed her hair on the eve of her graduation. The rules of the Zion community forbid bobbing hair.

lost away, and approval had already been accorded this Arkansas project by the United States Senate, when the citizens of Hope were aroused. That private toll bridge was never built—but in its place the state will soon throw open to traffic a new structure which the loyalty of Hope to Arkansas has made possible.

The congressman devoted part of his speech, which was a thrilling piece of oratory, to cautioning Arkansas, however, against the dangers of too heavy a bonded indebtedness. "It is a well known fact that we are road-mad," he said. "But we should not let our desire for god roads lead us into bad financing in other directions. I say it only in a spirit of constructive criticism, that almost every time we need money nowadays we ask the state to issue bonds—the total of which, if we are not careful, will be more than Arkansas can pay for in the next 200 years." He called particular attention to the growing burden of federal veterans' pensions from the Civil war, upon congress, and the vastly increased cost of Confederate pensions in Arkansas and other Southern states.

Prior to the congressman's address Mr. Anderson made a short speech outlining the purpose of the Loyalty movement. The gathering of trade around the home city, helps to support those business houses whose taxes help to support government and civilization.

He said. He reviewed the new business that have come to Hope within the last year, the new capital invested here, and concluded with an appeal for 100 per cent support of this year's Watermelon Festival—which bids fair to be the best in the city's history.

Stockingless Fad Now Hits Irish Trade Center

BELFAST, Ireland, July 3.—How to ban bare legs in business is a problem that is agitating Belfast business men. The barelegged fashion which commenced with girl tennis players and athletes has now spread to typists who with the advent of hot weather have taken up a vogue with enthusiasm to the detriment, it is claimed, for the powers of concentration of male workers in the same office as the bare-legged typists.

Complaints have also been made about girls working in flimsy party frocks, and in some cases an order has been given out for them to wear overalls, which, it is argued, may not be so handsome, but are certainly more business-like than picture-frocks.

One leading manufacturer, when he found his typists arriving stockingless at their work, put up notices warning his girl workers that if they did not come to work properly dressed they would be fired.

It was no use. He couldn't fire his entire staff of typists. Bare legs won, and the warning was taken down from the bulletin board.

Richmond Seeks To Save Church Where Patrick Henry Thundered

Historic St. John's church at Richmond, Va., (lower right), where Patrick Henry (lower left) delivered his famous "liberty or death" address, is considered a fire hazard and Virginians are attempting to protect it. Red Hill (above) is the home in Charlotte county where Henry died.

RICHMOND, Va., July 3.—(AP)—Citizens of Richmond are taking steps to reduce fire hazard to old St. John's church where the beacon of American liberty was lighted in 1775 by Patrick Henry.

The church, scene of the famous Virginia assembly of March 20, 1776, where Patrick Henry delivered his famous "Give me liberty, or give me death," speech, three times has been threatened with destruction by fire due to an antiquated heating system.

Boilers beneath the floor of the church three times recently have caused fire to break out in the building. A campaign for $10,000 to install a modern heating system has been undertaken.

Services have been held in the church without interruption since its erection prior to the Revolution. Here it was that the Virginia assembly met during a crisis in American history and heard Patrick Henry urge the nation to war. In the rough-hewn pews of the church have sat George Washington, Thomas Jefferson, Edmund Randolph, Thomas Nelson, and other noted patriots.

Wherever the American flag flies today the name of Patrick Henry, who rose from obscurity to light the fires of the war of the revolution, is honored.

The following text of the famous speech in part is that given by William Wirt Henry as quoted by members of the assembly:

"The question before the house is one of awful moment to this country. For my own part, I consider it as nothing less than a question of freedom or slavery. And in proportion to the magnitude of the subject, ought to be the freedom of debate."

"Should I keep back my opinions at such a time, through fear of giving offense, I should consider myself guilty of treason toward my country, and of an act of disloyalty toward the majesty of Heaven, which I revere above all earthly kings."

"I have but one lamp by which my feet are guided; and that is the lamp of experience. I know of no way of judging the future but by the past. And judging by the past, I wish to know what there has been in the conduct of the British ministry for the last 10 years, to justify those hopes with which gentlemen have been pleased to solace themselves and the house? * * *

"Suffer not yourselves to be betrayed by a kiss. Ask yourselves how this gracious reception of our petition comports with those warlike preparations which cover our waters and darken our land. Are fleets and armies necessary to a work of love and reconciliation? * * *

"We have done everything that could be done, to avert the storm which is now coming on. We have petitioned—we have supplicated—we have been spurned, with contempt, from the foot of the throne. * * *

"In vain, after these things, may we indulge the fond hope of peace and reconciliation. There is no longer any room for hope. If we wish to be free * * * we must fight. I repeat it, we must fight. An appeal to arms and to the God of Hosts, is all that is left us! * * *

"Our chains are forged, their clanking may be heard on the plains of Boston! The war is inevitable—and let it come! I repeat it, let it come!"

"It is in vain to extenuate the matter. Gentlemen may cry, peace, peace—but there is no peace. The war is actually begun! The next gale that sweeps from the north will bring to our ears the clash of resounding arms! Our brethren are already in the field!"

"Why stand we here idle? What is it that gentlemen wish? What would you have? Is life so dear, or peace so sweet as to be purchased at the price of chains and slavery? Forbid it, Almighty God! I know not what course others may take; but as for me, give me liberty, or give me death!"

Mrs. Evangeline Lindbergh, mother of the famed Lone Eagle, has been awarded a special medal of honor by the Detroit board of education for her qualities of "patriotism, loyalty, valor, heroism, courage, efficiency and the pursuit of the better and higher things of life."

The first steel and concrete Buddhist temple ever erected is being built in Tokio, Japan.

The loss in milk bottles in this country each year amounts up to about $15,000,000.

Judge Wilson To Name University Students

I am pleased to announce to the young men and women of Hempstead county that I am authorized to appoint 24 students as beneficiaries in the University of Arkansas at Fayetteville. These appointments entitle the holder to free tuition for four years.

The University is a state supported institution maintained by the taxpayers of Arkansas for the benefit of the young people of the state. In addition to the usual literary and classical courses offered in college, it comprises, as a part of its organization, the State College of Agriculture and Engineering, and is the only institution in the state giving complete college courses and degrees in those important industrial subjects. It also has complete courses in law and business administration.

The University has also a College of Education whose graduates receive diplomas entitling them to teach in the public schools for life.

For the young ladies there are complete courses in domestic science and art. Graduates of these courses are in great demand as teachers and as county agents in canning club and home economics work and at good salaries.

For admission to the University one must be a graduate of an accredited high school. Those who do not live in towns having high schools may obtain appointments and enter the University Training High School, where they may prepare themselves for the freshman class.

Complete information about the University may be obtained by addressing the Registrar of the University at Fayetteville. John L. Wilson, County Judge.

Helen Banner, 9, one of the most famous of present day Hawaiian hula dancers, is making her first visit to the mainland of the United States.

Death Whittles Ranks of War's Pigeon Aces

With the death of the wartime pigeon hero named President Wilson, Spike and Mocker are the only survivors of a famous pigeon trio. The soldiers are releasing pigeons as is done in battle.

WASHINGTON, July 2.—(AP)—Spike and Mocker, hero birds of the world war, are survivors of an illustrious winged trio which saved many lives in the Argonne.

Out of 20,000 carrier pigeons operated with the Signal Corps of the United States army, only three were conspicuously mentioned by the war department for gallantry in action.

The recent death of the third, President Wilson, at Fort Monmouth, N. J., broke up the trio which once hurled its courageous way through terrific fire and delivered precious messages safely.

Official reports concerning the feathered ace's condition were transmitted to signal corps headquarters here as if he were a wounded general. The last before his death reads:

President Wilson, assigned to the pigeon, is getting very frail, not sick but just gradually getting weaker and fading away."

President Wilson, assigned to the tank corps, flew through a heavy fog and rain during the Meuse-Argonne at nearly a mile a minute for 21 miles. He delivered his communication enclosed in the tiny aluminum cylinder still attached to one leg. The other leg had been shot away.

Deprived of their leader, Spike and Mocker still received all the homage due them. They are kept in the cleanest, airiest of lofts at Fort Monmouth. They are fed the choicest canary seed, rice and Canadian peas. Spike has a young son, Sonnybrook, who already has won a peacetime championship.

But never will young Sonnybrook have the same grim, intelligent look of old Spike, who delivered 52 important messages from the front lines in France to the American headquarters. Flying through the thickest of the fighting Spike never received a wound. His pedigree is uncertain. He is not handsome, but is strong and aggressive.

Mocker does not bear the charming life of Spike. But he is a hero. He homed in wonderful time on the Beaumont front, September 12, 1918, carrying a message giving the location of several heavy German batteries.

When he reached American headquarters "one eye had been destroyed by shrapnel and his head was a welter of clotting blood." But the information he brought enabled the American artillery to silence the enemy's guns within 20 minutes and undoubtedly saved many American lives.

When they die Spike and Mocker will have the same memorial accorded President Wilson and Cher Ami, another hero pigeon. Their bodies will be stuffed and kept in some prominent place. President Wilson's is to be kept at Fort Monmouth museum. That of Cher Ami is in the National museum here.

Miss Wylly Folk of Waycross will be the first woman student of the University of Georgia to edit the college magazine "Georgia Cracker" of which she will be in charge during the next year.

It Looks Like a Good Time Is Going to Be Had by All When 100,000 Elks Gather at Los Angeles in July

LOS ANGELES, Calif., July — Once again Los Angeles will be turned into the capital of brilliance when the world famous motion picture electrical pageant will be presented at the Elk's convention to be held here July 7 to 13.

The general convention program will be spread over an entire week and will embrace a host of sport events, election of officers, and auto and steamship tours up and down the coast. Approximately 100,000 visiting Elks and their families are expected to witness an air carnival, massed band concerts, an international fashion pageant, a beauty revue, receptions, banquets, yacht races, the motion picture pageant and competitive drill of the famous Elks' drill teams.

No other city in the world could provide a similar spectacle to the electrical pageant, which gained world fame by its showing at the recent Shrine convention.

The first large influx of visitors will be on Saturday, July 6, when Grand Exalted Ruler Murray Hulbert of New York will arrive with his staff accompanied by many past grand exalted rulers and grand lodge officers.

Sunday will be devoted to worship with special services in the churches. In the afternoon visiting bands and glee clubs will do their stuff at recreation centers and at night the delegates will retire behind locked doors for the ritualistic contest.

Contenders in the Elks' First National 54-hole golf tournament will tee off Monday morning, playing through Tuesday, with the finals the following day. For those who do not care for golf, a competitive trap-shoot has been arranged. A business meeting, bowling tournament, vesper organ recital, public session and a reception to the grand exalted ruler will follow.

Election of the grand exalted ruler for the following year will be held on Tuesday. Opinion indicates the selection of Judge Walter P. Andrews, prominent Atlanta, Ga., attorney.

Following the election, delegates will spend their way to the coliseum to view the famous drill team contests at which the world championship will be decided. The boys will put on a spectacular drill in colorful regalia.

The rest of the week's festivities will embrace a deep-sea fishing contest for cash prizes a lathing beauty review, a pageant of air-aeronautical spectacle and air circus, auto tours, fashion pageant installation of officers, several vesper organ recitals and a host of impromptu stunts by the playboys.

in the special session. Impeachment of John Rogers, state examiner and inspector, and the removal of the Rev. Forney Hutchinson and two other members of the state board of education will be recommended to the legislature by the general investigating committee, John Head, chairman of the committee, announced Tuesday. The reports of the sub-committee investigating the two officers were made Tuesday.

Impeachment of Rogers will be asked on four counts. Article one will charge that Rogers approved claims of persons drawing money for the state highway department audit appropriation with the full knowledge that they were not working on the highway audit, but were employed as members of his office force.

Article two (which the house will be asked to vote) will charge Rogers with failing to make examinations of the books of county treasurers twice a year as required by the constitution.

Article three will charge incompetency in specific cases.

Article four will charge general incompetency.

The general committee will recommend the house to ask Governor Holloway to remove Representative

Hutchinson, Mrs. Bertha Truitt and J. R. Holmes as members of the state board of education. The three acted as a board of regents for the state normal schools. The committee report charges that Mrs. Truitt, since becoming a member of the board of education has been paid $1528 for lectures and readings before the students of the schools; that Holmes has been paid $100 for teaching in summer schools and lecturing and the Hutchinson has been paid $330 for chapel talks.

Cleveland Fliers Near Record Mark

CLEVELAND, O., July 3. (AP)—The non-stop endurance flight record-seeking plane piloted by Roy L. Mitchell and Byron Newcomb roared on above Cleveland airport today as they added to the 100-odd hour time they have been aloft.

The fliers are well into the fifth day of their effort and notes dropped indicate they are in high spirits. Food is scarce—that is, real food—but they are feeling fine and confident they will break the present record, held by Robins and Kelly, made at Fort Worth in May.
